FIND ALLEGED I. W. W. PAPERS IN RUM RAID

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Aug. 26.—Sheriff W. E. Clayton and a half-dozen deputies and police raided the depot hotel here in search for liquor. They did not find any, but seized a lot of literature printed in foreign languages, which is suspected of being I. W. W. and Bolshevik literature. The hotel is conducted by the Rev. Delanis, a Greek priest.

EVEN ANTIQUES ARE HIT BY OLD H. C. L.

American millionaires who sprouted family trees in the fertile soil of war contract profits must be prepared to spend liberally if they want Louisieenth desks and whatnots and so on to scatter around the drawing room in proof of their ancient lineage.

New prices have been declared on antiques. According to all the dealers who have looked into the source of supply abroad, there will be no bargain sales this year. Prices are so high in France and England that some New York dealers in need of ready cash have shipped stuff back that they had imported.

War Hurt Imports.

During the war the thriving little industry of importing antiques, which includes everything from furniture to lapidary shoe buckles won by the dandies of old, had a severe setback, along with other industries. Ships were needed for other items of commerce and war.

Now all that is changed, and American dealers are beginning to scour the European market. Most of them expect to find impoverished nobles and others eager to unload their thirteenth century relics for a song. The Americans forgot that Europe, too, had her war brides. Hark to the tale of a Philadelphia antique dealer who has just returned from abroad.

"The dealers everywhere are independent. It is quite true that their runners are digging up plenty of stuff, but for every find there is a buyer waiting at home. And prices are going up so rapidly that nobody wants to sell unless he is forced to."

Old Masters "All Wrong."

"We've heard a great deal in this country about the war-made millionaires of England, but not so much of those in France. Prices in Paris are monstrous. So much so that some American dealers are shipping stuff back for sale here."

All of the information above is obtained from dealers who sell pedigrees with their relics. In other words, the antiques are old ones. Prices on the new ones manufactured in Jersey City and other places are also going up. The demand for this type of antique has increased even more than that for the real thing, mainly because most of the new millionaires don't really care whether its older or not, so long as it looks old.

Besides, the old artisans were oftentimes all wrong in their ideas of decoration. They were too simple. Modern antiques have no such fault. Some of the four-posters are brilliant enough to resemble Indian totem poles. Some even look like barber poles.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Rogers and their family are going this week on a camp trip. On Labor Day the grounds of their summer home at Southampton will be used for a recital by Mrs. Dana Clarke's dancing pupils in an Italian pantomime. The pupils are the children of members of the Southampton summer colony. The proceeds will go to the children of French officers killed or wounded during the war.

In the "water sports" contests at Eaglesmere, Pa., last Thursday, the first prize in girls' canoe racing, was won by Miss Louise Yansant, of Philadelphia, and Miss Katharine Hine Penning, of Washington. Miss Penning is a senior at Friends' School.

Mme. Giuseppe Brambilla, formerly Miss Julia Meyer, is visiting her mother, Mrs. George von Lengerke Meyer at her home at Rock Maple Farm, Hamilton, Mass. Mme. Brambilla married several seasons ago the counselor of the Italian embassy here, the acquaintance and courtship having begun while her father was Secretary of the Navy, and the family living in Washington.

Former Secretary Meyer had also been United States ambassador to Italy and the family's associations with the Italian embassy were always particularly cordial. Mrs. Meyer even now is figuring rather prominently as one of those who is entertaining in honor of Admiral Hugo Conz, of the Italian navy and the officers of the dreadnaught Conte di Cavour, which is now in Massachusetts waters.

Word comes, by the way, that Gen. Emilio Gugliemotti the retiring military attaché of the Italian embassy, who is now in New England slipped into the water while climbing a rope ladder, on a visit to Conte di Cavour. He was, of course, rescued unhurt but rather wet.

Mr. Brambilla has been appointed counselor of the Italian embassy in London, and Mme. Brambilla on the conclusion of her visit to the United States will join her husband in England.

Robert W. Woolley, the Interstate Commerce Commissioner, and his family are spending several weeks at Cape May.

evening when men of every service will be welcome.

Arrangements for the observance of Old Defenders' day, September 12, in Washington were announced at a meeting of the Maryland State Society in the Thomson School last night.

The following tableaux will be given as a part of the celebration in the auditorium of the Central High School: Scene 1 will show Lord Baltimore receiving the land grant in England, scene 2 will be the landing of Baltimore pilgrims, scene 3 the killing of General Ross and scene 4 the writing of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

A double quartet will sing "Maryland, My Maryland" while "The Star-Spangled Banner" will be sung by a chorus of 1,000 voices.

MOVIES MAKING GIRLS PRETTIER

LONDON, Aug. 26.—That the rising generation of English girls includes a larger proportion of beauties than any preceding one is the claim of certain observers of feminine pulchritude, and now some theorists say the movies are the cause.

Constant contemplation of the most beautiful types of womanhood on the films, they argue, cannot fail to have its effect. The semi-darkness of the theater, the music, the upward gaze, are all conditions favorable to such psychic influence, it is urged, and the mental impressions received by young people of these conditions when gazing upon selected types of loveliness and form must tend to have a cumulative effect resulting in the general beautification of the race.

CATHOLIC UNION PLEDGES AID TO FREE IRELAND

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—Pledging its support to the Republic of Ireland, the Catholic Young Men's National Union adopted resolutions here characterizing as unjust the continuation of the subjugation of Ireland to British rule. Copies of the resolution were sent to officials of the Irish Republic, Senator Lodge, chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, and to Speaker Gillett of the House.

The union also adopted resolutions pledging fidelity to the Pope and praising him for his impartiality during the war.

Now You May Eat More Beef and Lamb

The war is over; and all restrictions on meat are off.

Now you may eat all you want with a free conscience—beef, lamb, veal—three times a day if you wish.

You have done splendidly; you have helped win the war by denying yourself meat, as you have in dozens of other ways.

But you needn't hold off any more; it's over "over there" forever.

Most of the boys are back at work; army meat demands are no longer a strain.

England and other European Countries do not have to depend solely upon us any more. Ever since the beginning of the war, the American live stock raiser has been raising so much more live stock that there is plenty to go 'round.

So, go back to your meat and enjoy it.
